

LABOR WILL TURN OUT

And Make This a Gala Day in Anaconda.

A. R. U. DEMONSTRATION

Street Parade This Morning Followed by Addresses in the Afternoon—Match Between Fats and Leans.

Today the labor organizations and other societies will march in a grand parade, to show their sympathy with the American Railway union in its present fight against the Pullman company. The parade will be very large and will undoubtedly convey to the railroad men full confidence that labor in all its different forms and trades is heartily with them at the present time. The procession is under the auspices of the Deer Lodge County Trades and Labor assembly, and while it will be the principal feature of the day, as far as a demonstration is concerned, the speaking and picnic which will follow in the park, will undoubtedly bring forth a large crowd.

The parade will form at the corner of Park avenue and Main street and be made up as follows:

Marshal of the Day and Aides.
D. C. C. Band.
Trades and Labor Assembly.
A. R. U.
W. R. Morley Assembly, K. of L.
Carpenters and Joiners' Union.
Cooks and Waiters' Assembly, K. of L.
Butchers' Protective Assembly, K. of L.
Federal Union.
Iron Molders' Union.
International Association of Machinists.
Brotherhood of Blacksmiths.
Boilermakers' Union.
Austrian Slavonian Assembly, K. of L.
Typographical Union.
Cigar makers' International Union.
Brewers' Union.
Stationary Engineers.
Copper City Chapter Assembly, K. of L.
Barbers' Protective Assembly, K. of L.
Bricklayers' Union.
Musicians' Mutual Protective Union.
B. F.
Women's Protective Assembly.
Juvenile Assembly, K. of L.

The line of march as arranged by J. H. Hoy, marshal of the day, is south on Main street to Third, thence east to Chestnut, north to Front and west to Main, south on Main to Commercial avenue, east to Cedar, south on Cedar to Park avenue, thence west along Park avenue to Main and out to the park, where the assemblage will be addressed by some of Montana's most famous and best known speakers, including Mr. Ramsdell of Kalispell; Peter Breen and Charles Lane of Butte. These gentlemen will address the meeting upon the live topics of the hour and their speeches will prove of great interest to all at this time.

At 2:30 o'clock the great five innings game between the Anaconda Fats and Leans will be called. R. T. Williams is captain of the husky nine and Joe Walsh of the thin men. The Leans will wear blue overalls that have an attachment to them that comes round the neck. The Fats will wear the same kind of suits, only white. M. Dwyer, captain of the Anaconda league team, will umpire the game. The teams and the positions of the men in the field are as follows:

LEANS. O'Donnell.....1st b.....FATS. Kennedy.....1st b.....McMonimon.....2nd b.....Cohen.....2nd b.....Kimbrell.....3rd b.....Maloney.....3rd b.....Hamby.....4th b.....Berka.....4th b.....Stephens.....5th b.....Sullivan.....5th b.....Walsh.....5th b.....MacPherson.....5th b.....

The lighter men own that they have a nerve to play against such a combination, as Frank Stebbins always breaks a number of bats fanning the air in every game in which he plays. George Tighe can keep a good sized ball factory going in supplying the spheres he can knock over the fence, and Dr. Stephens is known to never miss a fly. If Rod Williams ever allows a batter to send one into the field, the Leans feel, however, that Mr. Kimbrell can pitch a curve that the Fats will never find. Chris O'Donnell is considered a little the finest first baseman in the United States, and there is no doubt in anyone's mind that if he would give up the grocery business, he could make a fortune on the diamond. Lew Coleman made a record for himself in Deer Lodge last year and confidence is expressed that he will show the spectators what base sliding really is when done by a "profeesh." P. J. Sullivan can umpire a game without getting killed and is said to be anxious to see if he comes out as fortunate when playing. Harry Hamby can play ball as it is played when played properly, and those who have never seen him play don't know the rudiments of the game.

During the afternoon and evening a dance will be in progress at the pavilion, and after the ball game the following splendid programme of sports will be completed, for prizes donated by the merchants of Anaconda:

Ladies' egg race, prize, ladies shoes, by J. A. Schroeder; waits prize, afternoon, ladies' prize by Smith Drug company; waits prize, evening, ladies' prize by Merrill, the jeweler; waits prize, afternoon, gentlemen's hat by Loece & Maxwell; waits prize, evening, gentlemen's shoes by Katzenstein & Cohen; 100-yard foot race, box of cigars by F. Foskett; sack race, walking stick by L. A. King; high jump, meal ticket, by Anaconda restaurant; long jump, briar pipe, by Robert Greig; three-legged race, box of cigars, by Hammer-slough & Co.; Misses' potato race, work basket by Martin Drug company; fat man's race, silver cup, by J. C. Keppler; foot race for juvenile assembly, a boy's suit of clothes, by Copper City Commercial company.

IT WAS A HOT DAY.

And the Effect of the Weather Was Evident in Court.

There were no state or city cases tried in Judge Rockwell's court yesterday, the time of the court being taken up all day in disposing of a civil suit. Judge Winston and Colonel O'Leary were the attorneys representing the plaintiff and defendant respectively, and the case dragged most tediously. It was all about checks and receipts and book accounts, and the thermometer in the middle of the afternoon stood at 90 degrees. The judge lay back in his chair and tried to appear interested in the case, though a mind reader, who was one of the few people in the audience that had the hardihood as a disinterested person to stay through the proceedings, said the judge was wondering if the decorum of his court would stand a general coat shedding. Even Cash, Judge Rockwell's little spaniel, lay at his owner's feet without a murmur, though it is true he was tied round the neck with a rope thick enough to hang a dozen Penedegats at once.

Colonel O'Leary would slightly close one eye now and then and mention something about taking a recess for two or three minutes, but Judge Rockwell and Mr. Winston had a bucket of ice water between them, and the latter attorney's soul was not athirst for anything but getting through with the case, and he waxed very warm, even more than the general conditions made necessary, and opposed every motion for a recess. Colonel O'Leary would then fire up and tell the other side a good deal about the rules of evidence, from books of original entry to the asking of leading questions. Musty receipts and checks that had been passed in long ago would then be presented to the court for inspection. Old worn ledgers, day books and journals would then be discussed. The conversation that John Smith had with Billy Jones on the Sunday three weeks before Thanksgiving day six years ago, or it might have been five, would be related by a witness. The other side would then scorch the witness and smile as they thought they had caught him in a lie, by asking if he ever knew a Sunday to come on Thanksgiving day. The question might have been a little reversed for the benefit of the witness, but it was too hot to be very particular. The witness did not remember such an occurrence, and he did not mean that the conversation he testified about did occur exactly three weeks from Thanksgiving day six years ago. It might have been two and a half or three and a half weeks before that great day that fell in the year stated. The attorney on the other side would then object and impress upon the court that there was no evidence before it to prove that Thanksgiving day did not occur upon Sunday six years ago. He showed plainly that the witness might refer to a stage Thanksgiving day and not a national one. He called to mind that Oregon had a Thanksgiving of its own a year ago. Finally the case got back to the original issue and at last was decided in favor of the plaintiff.

Miss Mary Bertech, Miss Isabelle Williams, Miss Cleo Bertech, Misses Louise and Bertha Ehret and Leonard Bertech went on a fishing trip yesterday morning and returned last evening with several large and beautiful trout.

R. M. Greig was overhauling his bicycles yesterday and finding the air had all escaped out of the tire of a wheel belonging to one of his iron horses. Although the atmosphere was warm enough yesterday, it rose about 10 degrees in the vicinity of Mr. Greig's store when he made the discovery that the tire, as he thought, had been punctured. He did not stop to make any experiments, but set to work melting the cement and getting the tire free from the wheel iron. After about an hour's hard work he succeeded in this, only to find that the tire was not punctured, but needed filling with air.

A corn and wart doctor took up his stand at the corner of Main street and Commercial avenue last night and entertained the crowd until the officers made him move to a place where there was not so much traffic. He opened his business by singing a song about the strike to the tune of "Marching Through Georgia." He was a little husky on the hurrah part of his ditty, but was mellow enough on the rest of it. When his song changed from strike to warts there was a general move in the crowd and a disappointed look on the countenances of most of those comprising his audience.
